- (g) providing an inclusive culture free from discrimination, harassment and victimisation;
- (h) avoiding or managing conflicts of interest;
- (i) acting in the best interests of CurveBeam;
- (j) not taking advantage of property or information for personal gain or to cause detriment to the Group; and
- (k) striving to be a good corporate citizen, and to achieve community respect.

CurveBeam is committed to ensuring that high standards of honesty, integrity, ethics and legality are upheld and enforced. Employees are expected to be honest and ethical in dealing with each other, with customers and all other third parties. An important part of that process is establishing and adhering to a set of principles that guide the conduct of everyone associated with CurveBeam. This Code of Conduct refers to policies, procedures and guidelines aimed at ensuring that appropriate ethical standards, corporate behaviour and accountability are maintained across the Group, from time to time.

CurveBeam will make its consultants and contractors aware of this Code of Conduct and will seek to ensure that consultants and contractors follow this Code of Conduct as if they were Employees.

2 Responsibilities under the Code

Each Employee must make himself or herself familiar with this Code of Conduct. If an Employee has any doubts about an issue or situation they should notify their manager (if relevant) or the Chief Executive Officer or, for American or European Employees, the President, Americas & Europe (each a Key Contact Person).

All Employees are responsible for actively reporting, in good faith, any inappropriate behaviour, corrupt practices, breach of the law and any breach of this Code of Conduct.

If an Employee is aware of, or suspects, a breach of this Code of Conduct or other inappropriate behaviour, the matter should be promptly reported by following the steps outlined in section 13. Retribution against a person for reporting or supplying information about a Code of Conduct or policy concern will not be tolerated.

Any person who breaches this Code of Conduct (including by failing to report a suspected breach, or by victimising another for reporting a concern) may be subject to corrective disciplinary action, including termination of employment for misconduct.

3 Compliance with laws and regulations

The Group and its Employees are subject to various legal requirements, including those relating to financial, corporate, disclosure and fair trading matters. Directors and officers also owe a number of fiduciary duties to CurveBeam. No director or officer may direct another Employee or any other person to violate any law on behalf of the Group.

All Employees should comply with the duties and obligations that apply to them or the Group under any relevant laws or regulations. Employees are encouraged to attend seminars presented by Group members or other external service providers from time to time on relevant legal and industry developments. If an Employee needs help understanding any relevant laws and regulations, they should seek assistance from a Key Contact Person.

4 Fair dealing

CurveBeam aims to maintain high standards of ethical behaviour in all its dealings with shareholders, users, government, partners, suppliers and the community.

Employees are expected to perform their duties in a professional manner and to act with integrity and fairness and are expected to strive at all times to enhance the reputation and performance of the Group.

5 Conflicts of interest

Employees should avoid any situation that involves or may involve an actual or perceived conflict between the Employee's personal interests and the interests of CurveBeam and its subsidiaries.

A conflict of interest may occur when the interests of an Employee or relative or associate of the Employee, or a duty or obligation to some other person or entity, conflict with a person's duty or responsibility to CurveBeam.

Potential direct or indirect conflicts of interest of Employees or those acting on behalf of CurveBeam (or their family, relatives, friends or agents) should be avoided as far as possible. If an Employee is concerned that they have a potential conflict of interest they should disclose and discuss the matter with, and seek direction from a Key Contact Person.

An Employee should report any potential or actual conflict of interests that they become aware of to a Key Contact Person.

The following are some common examples that illustrate actual or apparent conflicts of interest that should be avoided. This is not intended to be an exhaustive list.

- (a) Employees should not exploit their position or relationship with CurveBeam for personal gain. Employees and their relatives and friends should not give unreasonable gifts to, or receive unreasonable gifts from, suppliers, partners, or members of the medical imaging or medical software industries. Employees should not accept a gift in circumstances in which it would appear to others that the gift has caused their business judgement to be compromised.
- (b) Employees should avoid having a significant ownership interest in any other enterprise if that interest compromises or appears to compromise their ability to comply with CurveBeam's policies or their loyalty to CurveBeam, irrespective of the capacity within which the ownership interest is held. This will not normally apply to interests in listed entities. However, if an Employee has any doubt about such an investment they should consult with the Chief Executive Officer or the Chief Financial Officer.
- (c) If an Employee learns of a business or investment opportunity through the Group's information or their position at the Group, they should not participate in the business or make the investment without approval from the Chief Executive Officer or the Chief Financial Officer.

6 Improper use or theft of property and assets

Employees are expected to be responsible for protecting any property and assets of the Group that are under their control and they should safeguard them from loss, theft and unauthorised use. The Group's property and assets includes cash, securities, business plans, third party information, intellectual property (computer programs, software, models and other items), confidential information, office equipment and supplies.

As a general rule, the Group's property and documents should not be removed from official premises without a good and proper reason. If removed, they should be stored in a secure manner and covered by appropriate insurances.

Employees should use common sense and observe standards of good taste regarding content and language when creating documents that may be retained by the Group or a third party. The Group's electronic communications systems should not be used to access or post material that is pornographic, obscene, sexually-related, profane or which is otherwise offensive or violates the Group's policies or any laws or regulations. In addition, any use of the Group's electronic communications systems for non-business purposes should:

- (a) be occasional;
- (b) not interfere with professional responsibilities;
- (c) not diminish productivity; and
- (d) not violate this Code of Conduct or any other Group policies.

7 Confidentiality

In the course of business, Employees will have access to business or personal information about the affairs of the Group, its Employees, users, suppliers and its business partners. The information may include business strategies, marketing and sales plans, competitive analysis, financial plans and forecasts, user data, sales information, Employee information, supplier information and pricing. Each of the parties expects the confidential nature of the information they have given in good faith to be respected.

Employees must keep confidential information acquired while they are with the Group, or acting on behalf of the Group, confidential, even after they leave or cease their engagement with the Group.

Employees must not access or request or make improper use of or transfer or disclose confidential information to anyone else except as required by their position or as authorised or legally required. If it advertently comes into their possession it should be returned immediately.

If an Employee is required by an authority to provide confidential information that has not been otherwise authorised, they must notify the Chief Executive Officer or the Chief Financial Officer.

8 Privacy

The Group respects the privacy of others and will only use personal information collected from Employees for lawful purposes. Employees should familiarise themselves with and comply with the Group's procedures in relation to privacy.

The Group will promptly investigate all allegations of harassment, bullying, victimisation or discrimination and will take appropriate corrective action. Retaliation against individuals for raising claims of harassment or discrimination will not be tolerated.

10.2 Diversity

The Group recognises the value and unique contribution that each individual Employee can make, which will be influenced by their skills, experiences and perspectives, and the Group acknowledges the importance of a constructive and inclusive work culture. In support of this recognition, the Group has implemented a Diversity Policy designed to value and improve diversity in the workplace.

Employees should familiarise themselves with the Diversity Policy so that their actions are consistent with the Group's diversity objectives and principles. The policy is available on CurveBeam's website.

10.3 Occupational health and safety

The Group is committed to maintaining a healthy and safe working environment for its Employees. All appropriate laws and internal regulations (including work health and safety laws) should be fully complied with.

Misusing controlled substances or alcohol or selling, manufacturing, distributing, possessing, using or being under the influence of illegal drugs on the job will not be tolerated.

10.4 Securities trading

As noted in section 9.1, CurveBeam has adopted specific guidelines for dealing in CurveBeam securities. Employees should review the Securities Trading Policy and ensure they act in accordance with that policy. The policy is available on CurveBeam's website.

10.5 Bribes, inducements and commissions

The Group does not condone Employees giving or receiving any bribe, commission or inducement,, whether through an intermediary or otherwise, in any circumstance, even if it might be culturally acceptable.

Employees should not pay or receive any bribes, inducements or commissions (this includes any item intended to improperly obtain favourable treatment, whether from or to government bodies or otherwise). In addition, Employees should not give or receive any unreasonable gifts or otherwise act in an unethical way that may cause financial detriment or degrade the reputation or integrity of the Group.

The giving and receiving of bribes, inducements and commissions is against CurveBeam's policy and the laws of countries where the Group conducts business. Any Employee found to be receiving, accepting or condoning a bribe, commission or inducement, or attempting to initiate such activities may be liable for termination and possibly criminal proceedings and such conduct can have far reaching consequences for the Group, including causing significant reputational damage and exposing the Group and its officers and employees to liability under applicable laws.

CurveBeam has implemented an Anti-Bribery and Anti-Corruption Policy designed to set out the responsibilities of Employees in observing and upholding CurveBeam's position on bribery and corruption and to provide information and guidance on how to recognise and deal with bribery and corruption issues. Employees should familiarise themselves with this policy so that their actions are consistent with the objectives and principles in that policy. The policy is available on CurveBeam's website.

11 Politics and community

An Employee may voluntarily participate in the political process as an individual. An Employee should not engage in actions that could cause someone to believe that their actions or statements reflect the views or position of CurveBeam.

CurveBeam is a responsible corporate citizen and actively supports the communities in which it operates. CurveBeam provides information about itself in response to reasonable and responsible requests.

CurveBeam supports and encourages its Employees to actively contribute to the needs of the community. CurveBeam's requirements for making donations or sponsorship on behalf of CurveBeam must be complied with by Employees.

12 Environment and Social Responsibility

CurveBeam is committed to maintaining an environment that takes into consideration the social, ethical and environmental consequences of the Group's activities. Employees should ensure they comply with all appropriate laws and internal regulations in respect of the social, ethical and environmental practices of the Group.

13 Reporting unlawful and unethical behaviour

It is recognised that breaches of the Code of Conduct may occur from time to time. It is expected that any such breaches will be inadvertent and without intent, however, it should be clearly understood that any such breaches may result in disciplinary action or other penalty including termination.

If an Employee considers that a potential breach of the Code of Conduct has occurred, they should promptly report it to the Chief Executive Officer, who will in turn report such breaches to the Board. Employees will have the benefit of protections applicable under legislation in relation to whistle-blowing. CurveBeam will not tolerate retaliation in any form against a person who in good faith reports a suspected violation of the Code of Conduct.

When it is considered that a breach of the Code of Conduct has occurred, the handling of the process is to be administered by the Chief Executive Officer taking into account the severity of the misconduct and applicable laws. Where breaches are considered to be of a serious nature, penalties may be imposed on the offender ranging from counselling to dismissal. In such instances the Group will act objectively, fairly and equitably and consistent with any applicable provisions or requirements in an employment contract.

CurveBeam reserves the right to inform the appropriate authorities where it is considered that there has been criminal activity or an apparent breach of the law.
